THE TERRAIRE

Irancy is located near Chablis in the middle of a deep valley formed in the high hills of the right side of the Yonne valley. This valley, where vineyards alternate with cherry trees, has the shape of an arena facing south-west. The slopes consist of Kimmeridgian marl soils and brown calcareous soils.

DID YOU KNOW?

Irancy is one of the youngest AOC wines; it received its Appellation d'Origine Contrôlée certification in 1999. The village of Irancy is also the birthplace of Jacques-Germain Soufflot (1713) who was the architect of the Panthéon in Paris, the Place Royale in Reims and the Hôtel-Dieu in Lyon.
